Visiting Scholars

Peter A. Gourevitch is Distinguished Professor at the Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies at the University of California, San Diego, of which he is also the Founding Dean. As a world-renowned expert on international relations and comparative politics, Gourevitch specializes in corporate governance systems in a globalizing world economy, comparing differences in the way countries structure companies and their relationship to shareholders. He is an expert on international political economy with a particular focus on national responses to pressures arising from international trade and economic globalization, trade disputes among countries, and international trade negotiations. Recently he has been working on corporate social responsibility and the relationship between NGOs, regulation and international institutions. Read more

Alice Goffman is Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She is an urban sociologist who grew up in Philadelphia. Her dissertation was an ethnographic account of the heavily policed ghetto that has emerged as the US continues a War on Drugs and imprisons poor black men on a massive scale, and received the 2011 Best Dissertation Award from the American Sociological Association. With Mitchell Duneier, she recently completed a history and sociology of the ghetto from early modern Europe to the present. Read more
Visiting Scholars

Neil Fligstein is the Class of 1939 Chancellor’s Professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley. He is also the Director of the Center for Culture, Organization, and Politics at the Institute for Research on Labor and Employment. His main research interests lie in the fields of economic sociology, organizational theory, political sociology, and the sociology of work. He has been interested in developing and using a sociological view of how new social institutions emerge, remain stable, and are transformed to study a wide variety of seemingly disparate phenomena including the history of the large American corporation and the construction of a European legal and political system. He has used this framework to create a more general view of how markets and states are mutually constitutive and applied this framework to trying to make sense of how global markets work.

[Read more]

Heather A. Haveman is Professor of Sociology and Business at the University of California, Berkeley. Her research lies in the macro side of organizational theory. It can best be summarized as the analysis of how organizations, the fields in which they are embedded, and the careers of their members and employees evolve. She investigates questions that relate to organizational stability and change: How strong are the forces that impel or inhibit change in organizational structures, strategies, and actions? What are the consequences of organizational change for organizations themselves and for their employees? Her published studies have investigated California thrifts, Iowa telephone companies, Manhattan hotels, California hospitals, American magazines, and US electric utilities.

[Read more]

Kimberly J. Morgan is an Associate Professor of Political Science and International Affairs at the George Washington University. Her research focuses on comparative public policy in advanced industrialized countries, with particular interests in family policies, immigration, health care, and taxation. She teaches undergraduate classes on European politics, comparative politics, immigration and identity, and graduate courses on comparative politics and comparative social policy. Her most recent book, The Delegated Welfare State: Medicare, Markets, and the Governance of American Social Policy, has been published by Oxford University Press.

[Read more]

Visiting PhD Students

Eileen Keller is a social scientist by training. She is currently enrolled in the Berlin Graduate School of Social Sciences, an international doctoral program at Humboldt University, Germany, and she holds Master’s degrees from the University of Stuttgart, Germany, and Sciences Po Bordeaux, France. Eileen works on the development of the financial regimes in Germany and France over the last decades. She investigates how and with what consequences market-related forms of banking have been introduced in the so-called bank-based financial systems of the two countries respectively.

[Read more]
Benedetta Voltini is a PhD candidate at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Her PhD thesis investigates the role of non-state actors in EU foreign policy-making towards the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Before coming to Sciences Po, she was also a Visiting Fellow at the European Union Institute for Security Studies and at the Freie Universität Berlin.

Anthony Imbrogno is a PhD candidate in the Department of Political Science at McGill University, Montréal, Canada. His dissertation examines the effects of internal and external trade patterns on intergovernmental relations, specifically focusing on heads-of-government meetings in Canada, Australia and the European Union. Currently, he is Managing Editor of the Review of International Political Economy.

Activities

MaxPo LECTURE

Wednesday, 22 May 2013
5 pm – 7 pm
How Does Wine Taste? Sense, Science, and the Market in the 20th Century
Salle de conférence, 56 rue Jacob, 75006 Paris

Steven Shapin is Franklin L. Ford Professor of the History of Science at Harvard University. His books include Leviathan and the Air-Pump: Hobbes, Boyle, and the Experimental Life (1985; with Simon Schaffer), A Social History of Truth: Civility and Science in Seventeenth-Century England (1994), The Scientific Revolution, the Scientific Life: A Moral History of a Late Modern Vocation (2008), Never Pure: Historical Studies of Science as if It Was Produced by People with Bodies, Situated in Time, Space, Culture and Society, and Struggling for Credibility and Authority (2010). His research focuses on historical and contemporary studies of dietetics, the changing languages and practices of taste, the nature of entrepreneurial science, and modern relations between academia and industry. Read more

Joint Conference MaxPo – Sciences Po – University of California, Berkeley
GRADUATE STUDENT CONFERENCE ON ECONOMIC MORALITIES

30–31 May 2013
Amphithéâtre Claude Erignac, 13 rue de l’Université, 75007 Paris

Opening Remarks
Jens Beckert, Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies
Marion Fourcade, MaxPo

Keynote Address
Neil Fligstein, UC Berkeley

All the Incentives Were Wrong: Fraud and the Financial Crisis
Concluding Remarks
Heather A. Haveman, UC Berkeley
Cornelia Woll, MaxPo

Panels on

The conference is open to the public (with prior registration only). Please register by sending an email to Marina Abelskaia-Graziani (marina.abelskaiagraziani@sciences-po.fr)
Activities

SCOOPS

Monday, 13 May 2013
12:30 pm – 2:30 pm
Alice Goffman, University of Wisconsin-Madison
On the Run: Coming of Age under Mass Imprisonment
Discussant: Nonna Mayer, CEE
Salle 511, 199 bd Saint-Germain, 75007 Paris

Thursday, 20 June 2013
12:30 pm – 2:30 pm
Kimberly J. Morgan, George Washington University
The Gendered Politics of Immigrant Integration Policy in Western Europe
Discussant: Bruno Palier, CEE
Salle 511, 199 bd Saint-Germain, 75007 Paris

COOPS

Thursday, 25 April 2013
12:30 pm – 2 pm
Philip Mader, Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies
Explaining and Quantifying the Extractive Success of Financial Systems: Microfinance and the Financialization of Poverty
Discussant: Marion Fourcade, MaxPo
Salle H402, 28 rue des Saints-Pères, 75007 Paris

Co-Directorship Open at MaxPo

Sciences Po invites applications for a permanent position of Professor of Sociology at Sciences Po, at the level of Associate or Full Professor depending on the experience of the candidate.

The successful candidate will codirect the MaxPo Center.

Read more

MaxPo Newsletter, Spring 2013
The MaxPo Newsletter provides information on people and upcoming events at the Max Planck Sciences Po Center on Coping with Instability in Market Societies. It is published three times a year.

maxpo
Max Planck Sciences Po Center on Coping with Instability in Market Societies
27 rue Saint Guillaume
75337 Paris cedex 07 France
Tel +33 145 49 59 32
Fax +33 158 71 70 90
Email info@maxpo.eu
www.maxpo.eu

Editorial Staff
Vincent Morandi, Silvia Oster
Layout
www.dk-copiloten.de, Cologne
Website
www.maxpo.eu/news.asp
Subscriptions
If you want to receive the MaxPo Newsletter free of charge by email, write to info@maxpo.eu

The Max Planck Sciences Po Center on Coping with Instability in Market Societies (MaxPo) is a Franco-German research center which was jointly founded by the Max Planck Society and Sciences Po. Researchers at MaxPo investigate how individuals, organizations, and nation-states are coping with the new forms of economic and social instability that have developed in Western societies as a result of policy shifts, the expansion of markets, technological advances, and cultural changes. Located at Sciences Po Paris and cooperating closely with the Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies (MPSG) in Cologne, the Center aims to contribute substantially to the social sciences in Europe and enrich academic and political dialogue between France and Germany.